

AFTER YEAR'S SEARCH DOG FINDS MASTER

After a year's search a big Ayredale terrier found his master last night in the elevator of the Young Hotel. The dog was gaunt, unkempt and his paws were sore. He could barely give his tail a wag, much less bark. He was all in, but when Judge Henry Highton and Mrs. Highton stepped out of the lift there was no mistaking the dog's joy.

Twelve months ago the Judge was living at Waikiki beach beyond the end of the car line. There the dog disappeared, whether stolen or lost is not known. Search was made everywhere for him but it was at last concluded that he was gone for good.

Six months ago the Hightons moved in and took up their quarters at the Young. Still there was no word of the big, faithful Ayredale.

The dog did not give up apparently. When released from captivity he sought the Waikiki house only to find his master gone. Then, if starved body and worn feet are part of his story, he sought all Honolulu over. What strange instinct brought him to the big hotel can not be known. Maybe it was chance. But he was watching the elevator and in due time the Judge appeared and the Ayredale was home at last.

NOTHING DOING FOR THE OREGON MAIDS

There was no meeting of the Hawaii Promotion Committee yesterday. In reality there is no organization, as there is neither a chairman nor a temporary chairman, and the new members have not yet taken their place on the board. Consequently no action has been had in the matter of arranging for the entertainment of the eight beautiful Oregon maids who are to come here as guests of the Portland Journal. A meeting will be held today at 3:30 p. m.

FOR HARBOR IMPROVEMENT.

A number of small scale maps are being prepared by Lieutenant Slattery for the use of the contractors in the harbor improvement work. These maps will indicate the character and amount of work for each day. Work is expected to arrive at any time of the approval of the contract between the War Department and the San Francisco Bridge Co. As soon as the contract is approved the San Francisco company will begin work. The amount of the contract is $400,000, less office and engineering expenses which will amount to about $650 a month. The San Francisco Company is expected to bring an extensive plant here for operation.
